

MEMO — (1)

Grandma Supinau started the custom of having dinner after Indian funerals. Her father was buried about noon. So they just fed everybody there. So that's how it began. cont. 2

(3)
The Delawares had the custom first. They gave the dinner after prayer meetings. So when one man here died they gave a dinner after the funeral.

PAV

Remember to order from

John Walker
Gene C. Hunter

(over)

(2)
Francis Hood Eagle was at the funeral dinner. He liked Grandma's father very much. The next year he told Grandma that her father was such a good man, they should have another dinner. So they gave one. Then Grandma gave one the third year on the funeral anniversary. So now the Quapaws give ~~dinner~~ <sup>that</sup> one on the funeral day and one each year for 2 years.