

Quapaw Indian Agency, } ss.
Wyandotte, Oklahoma.

In the matter of a hearing to be held before Irs C. Deever, Superintendent, in the heirship case of Alexander Mudd, deceased Quapaw allottee, No. 177, continued from September 24, 1913, comes now, George Redeagle, a Quapaw Allottee of the Quapaw Reservation, who is of legal age, and first being duly sworn, answers the following questions:

- Q. What is your name and age, and of what tribe of Indians are you a member?
- A. My name is George Redeagle, I am 48 years of age, and a member of the Quapaw Indians.
- Q. Were you well acquainted with Alexander Mudd?
- A. Yes, I knew him all his life time.
- Q. About when did Alexander Mudd die?
- A. He died during the summer of 1898, as near as I can remember at about the age of 15 or 16 years.
- Q. Was Alexander Mudd married at the time of his death?
- A. He was never married, and never ever had any children.
- Q. What was Alexander Mudd's father's name?
- A. His name was E-bas-ka.
- Q. About when did E-bas-ka die?
- A. As well as I can remember, he died about 1881.
- Q. Do you know who Alexander Mudd's mother was?
- A. I do not remember his mother, neither can I recall her name.
- Q. Did Alexander Mudd have any brothers and sisters?
- A. I knew of one sister, Emily Hughes, who died at the Chillico Indian School in girlhood, never ever having been married, and never ever having any children.
- Q. Did you know Johnny Goldspring, and about when did he die?
- A. He died August 3, 1901. I was well acquainted with him.
- Q. At the time of his death, was he married, and did he leave any children?
- A. Yes, he was married to my sister, Grace Redeagle, and left one child, a son, Walter Goldspring, both of whom are now living.
- Q. Did you know Mary Goldspring, and is she living or dead?
- A. I knew her well, and she died ~~during the~~ February 1, 1894, unmarried and without children.

George Redeagle 10